followed. Small "mending and repairing jobs" will not do, nor will the ways and practices of the old-type schools. We must make the most radical break with old traditional ideas, and destroy conservative ideas and the world outlook of a coward and idler. We must dare to fight against the revisionist line on education which had prevailed for 17 years. It is our firm belief that as long as schools of all grades and categories are able to master the experience of the Chaoyang Agricultural College in Liaoning and Laiyang Agricultural School in our province, our revolution in education will surely go forward in big strides and score new success.

A County's Struggle against Capitalist Tendencies

Peking home service 0800 gmt 12 Mar 75

(i) Precis, with quotations, of report by Kueite County Party Committee, "Dare to criticize capitalist tendencies":

Kueite County is an agricultural county located in the upper reaches of the Yellow River. At present, an upsurge is being whipped up here in studying theory, grasping the line and promoting spring farming. The responsible persons of the county Party committee have led more than 100 county cadres to work in communes and production brigades and propagate Chairman Mao's important instruction on the question of theory, and have organized the masses to study the theory of the dictatorship of the proletariat. As a result, the cadres and masses in the countryside have pledged themselves to uphold the Party's basic line and further to fulfil the tasks of the dictatorship of the proletariat in the basic-level units so as to promote spring farming and win a still better harvest this year.

"In the past few years, the county has stressed the need to take the Party's basic line as the key link in learning from and popularizing Tachai's experience. However, these efforts did not bring about any significant change in revolution and production. Some people held that since the county was high above sea level, its climate cold with only brief frost-free periods, and it was good for only one crop a year, their failure to promote agriculture quickly and vigorously was mainly due to restriction by natural conditions."

The county Party committee studied the situation in the (Tachicha) production brigade of (Hoying) commune where they found similar natural environmental conditions. However, since the beginning of the movement to learn from Tachai, the commune members had unswervingly implemented the Party's basic line and strengthened the dictatorship of the proletariat. "During the great proletarian cultural revolution, they criticized the theory of productive forces, firmly grasped class struggle, and struggled with the class enemy. At the same time, they aroused the people's socialist enthusiasm through encouragement and education. Their average grain yield per mow for several consecutive years reached the target set in the national agricultural development programme as well as that set for areas South of the Yellow River. It has now become an advanced local unit in learning from Tachai in agriculture."

The experience of the (Tachicha) production brigade gave the county Party committee much food for thought. The Party committee members realized that production in the county was poor because they did not study hard or investigate deeply and did not fully understand the Party's basic line. Moreover, although the socialist revolution continued to gather momentum, they did not fully realize the characteristics and laws of class struggle. "They were only concerned with attacking the handful of class enemies who had leaped out into the open, but were not aware of the activities of those class enemies who took advantage of the spontaneous tendency of small production to stir up capitalist tendencies. In particular, they could not immediately recognize certain elements who engaged in capitalist activities behind the signboard of socialism. Meanwhile some comrades in the county Party committee did not dare to wage a tit-for-tat struggle against capitalist tendencies. As a result, the county Party committee was unable to take positive measures under a clear-cut banner to help the basic-level Party organization fully to expose and handle the contradictions in the struggle between the two lines."