personal needs and close the village markets. They believed that this would restrict the bourgeois rights and draw a line of demarcation with the old concept of private ownership.

"This proposal was heard by (Hsu Wei-huan), secretary of the county Party committee. He immediately organized the committee members to study theory conscientiously and restudy the relevant policies of the Party. This made them understand that, at the present stage, the commune members are allowed by policy to farm small plots for their personal needs and to engage in limited household sideline production as a supplementary part of the socialist economy. If all the small plots tilled for personal needs and household sideline production were abolished without considering the present levels of the force of production and of the consciousness of the people, this would dampen the masses' enthusiasm for socialism and undermine the development of the forces of production."

(Hsu Wei-huan) also talked to the Party committee secretaries of local communes about the afore-mentioned study and discussion, thus dismissing the erroneous proposal and implementing the Party policies well.

To deepen the mass movement to learn from Tachai in agriculture, the county Party committee has assigned only one standing committee member to be in charge of office routine work and organized the 14 others to go to work at the rural grassroot units. They take part in collective productive labour and help the units solve problems.

Recently, the leading members of the county Party and revolutionary committee took the lead in sending their sons and daughters to settle in the countryside. This has encouraged other cadres and revolutionary parents. More than 1,800 middle school graduates of the 1975 class have left to settle in the countryside, taking the road of integrating with the poor and lower-middle peasants.

Responsible comrades of the Kansu Provincial Women's Federation and the Lanchow Municipal CCP Committee attended and addressed the meeting. In their speeches, they pointed out emphatically that setting up socialist courts was a new socialist thing which had emerged in the course of studying the theory of the dictatorship of the proletariat. This was a good form of fulfilling the task of consolidating the dictatorship of the proletariat in urban neighbourhoods. All departments and circles should show concern for and support such a new thing and gradually popularize it throughout the municipality in order to transform and build all urban neighbourhoods into strong positions of the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Since the publication of Chairman Mao's important instruction on the question of theory, the No 2 neighbourhood committee on (Linchuan) Street in (Chengkuan) District, Lanchow Municipality, has organized residents in the neighbourhood to study earnestly the theory of the dictatorship of the proletariat and to review the fierce struggle
