should link itself with factories and process products for them. (3) Such sideline occupations as pig-raising should be resumed. (4) Existing facilities should be used to do a good job of maintaining and repairing farm machinery and implements.

(b) Text of 18th August 'Hopei Daily' editor's note to report:

In the movement to study profoundly the theory of the dictatorship of the proletariat, the cadres and commune members of (Niulantaotzu) production brigade in Wuchiang County have conducted a vigorous discussion of questions about the orientation and line concerning sideline production on the brigade in order to distinguish between socialism and capitalism by integrating theory with practice. As a result, they have been able to follow further the correct orientation and road in developing the collective economy. This style of study - integrating theory with practice - should be promoted.

Our principle in agricultural development is, "Take grain as the key link and ensure all-round development." While energetically developing agriculture, we should also vigorously develop sideline production according to local conditions. However, a fierce struggle between the two lines has always gone on over the questions of what kind of sideline production should be undertaken, and how to engage in such production. The experiences of (Niulantaotzu) production brigade prove once again that although the socialist transformation of ownership has been in the main completed, the question of what road to follow has not yet been entirely settled in the countryside. The question of what line a leading group follows is a matter having a direct bearing on the orientation for developing the collective economy.

Therefore, all leading cadres and commune members should earnestly study the theory of the dictatorship of the proletariat, continue the revolution in the superstructure and the economic base, and exercise all-round dictatorship over the bourgeoisie. Moreover, they should continue the revolution under the dictatorship of the proletariat through to the end.

Kweichow Conference on Rustication

Kweiyang, Kweichow provincial service 1300 gmt 5 Aug 75

Precis of report:

Kweichow Provincial CCP Committee held a conference from 24th July to 2nd August to discuss the work of settling educated young people in the rural areas. Comrades responsible for this work in all parts of the province, the provincial military district and military subdistricts, and comfort groups visiting educated young people attended the conference. Li Pao-hua, second secretary of the Provincial CCP Committee, spoke at the conference [no details]. The conference pointed out that the province had achieved great success in the work of settling educated young people in the rural areas. Through studying the theory of the dictatorship of the proletariat, people have enhanced their understanding of the importance of this work. Many progressive collectives and individuals have emerged among the rusticated young people. However, there remain a number of problems in the work which must be further solved.

At present it is necessary to do a good job of mobilizing the educated young people and setling them in the rural areas, launching and relying on the masses to grasp this work. The educated young people should be taught to go to the rural areas, to places of greatest hardship and to places where the poor and lower-middle peasants need them most. In accordance with the spirit of the Centre's instructions, it is necessary to adopt various forms in settlement work, such as establishing contacts between factories and communes. Leading cadres must take the lead in sending their sons and daughters to the rural areas. The comrades in the rural areas must welcome the educated young people
